A "Monday Moment" with...John Eustice

It's Monday morning and that means The Arc of New Jersey is taking a moment to recognize and celebrate the achievements of an individual with a disability who is succeeding in the workforce! Today we put the spotlight on John Eustice. John works part-time at New York Sports Club in East Brunswick as part of the maintenance team. He has been an employee of the gym for the last eight years and during that time he has received assistance when needed from a job coach. John says that having a job coach helps him communicate with his employer. John enjoys the gym atmosphere and he can be seen encouraging members to take their workouts to the next level. John says he would advise other people with disabilities to work because, "you make money, and have fun and it [helps you] stay focused." John says one of his challenges on the job is paying attention, but that keeping busy helps him stay on track. When asked what he'd like to change about his job, John answered without hesitation: "I'd work full-time."
