

WHAT IS SELF-ADVOCACY?

Self-Advocacy is people with disabilities speaking for themselves.

With proper supports, people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD) are empowered to make life decisions, such as where they will live, what sort of career they will pursue, and how their medical care will be directed.

The New Jersey Self-Advocacy Project is dedicated to assisting people with I/DD in building advocacy and leadership skills.

The New Jersey Self-Advocacy Project

Promoting empowerment and independence in the lives of people with intellectual and developmental disabilities through education and awareness

A program of
The Arc of New Jersey
Since 1983

The New Jersey Self-Advocacy Project is committed to providing self-advocates with resources, education and support to positively influence their lives and encourage them to speak on their own behalf.

NJSAP works to fulfill this mission by:

- Conducting trainings and leadership seminars for self-advocates and group advisors across the state
- Actively supporting the 150+ self-advocacy groups across the state, as well as assisting with various activities based on the goals of each group.
- Facilitating fundraising and public outreach initiatives
- Conducting presentations to community groups, schools and conference audiences
- Educating state legislators & decision makers regarding issues of importance to people with disabilities

Self-advocates know their rights and work to educate other advocates, legislators and the public on issues of importance to people with disabilities.

These issues include improving the public transportation system, using person first language, and providing employment opportunities and helping people access supports and services.

I am a Person First.

Words are powerful.

Please speak with respect.

Recognize a person's humanity before their disability.

Use This	Avoid This

Person with a visual impairment	Blind person
Person with a hearing impairment	Deaf person

Educate: Members of the New Jersey Statewide Self-Advocacy Network testify before legislators in Trenton to educate them on issues of importance to people with I/DD.

Cooperate: Self-advocates recognize the importance of working together to accomplish goals. The New Jersey Self-Advocacy Project works with self-advocates to plan and carry out various cooperative projects, public awareness events, and fundraising activities.

Participate: New Jersey Statewide Self-Advocacy Network and the New Jersey Self-Advocacy Project welcome every person to join the movement! You do not have to be a member of a local group or affiliated with a local chapter of The Arc. Contact the NJSAP office for additional information about joining our mailing list and becoming an independent advocate.
